

Aristodimos Chatzidakis.

Aristodimos Chatzidakis is a Civil Engineer. He graduated, in 1974, from the National Technical University of Athens.

As an independent Civil Engineer he has been mainly involved in the structural design and the supervision of many private works. He has been involved also as structural and geotechnical engineer, in many infrastructure projects. He has specialized in the structural analysis and design, for the restoration of traditional buildings and monuments.

He has taught principles of structural analysis and design for the restoration of monuments, in seminars organized by the Technical Chamber of Greece, the Greek Architect's Association and the Greek Civil Engineer's Association. He has participated in congresses, conventions and meetings organized by ICOMOS etc. He has published many articles about the history of constructions and civil engineers.

Email: chatzidakisaris@gmail.com